

Secret Community Exists Within Saco

Considered a secret by many only because it is often overlooked, until the need arises, is the Wardwell Retirement Neighborhood. It is a hidden gem of an asset for the Saco-Biddeford community that provides more than just a place to live for retired people. It's a cozy community on a campus setting conveniently located in a low traffic residential neighborhood close to the center of downtown Saco.

The Wardwell retirement community has a rich history that extends back over 115 years. Life began for this community as the Wardwell Home, a residence for elderly women. Now a century later, the Wardwell Home is a part of the campus-like community that includes the Wardwell Gardens, Wardwell Commons, Wardwell Terrace and the Wardwell Apartments. Each facility has its own defined mission and purpose for the retirement life of this community.

Some of the key features of the Wardwell neighborhood are comfortable, attractive apartments, social activities, recreation and meals for our residents. The community is staffed by a dedicated group of professionals and volunteers.

The mission for the Wardwell Retirement Neighborhood is to serve older members of the community with dignity, and to provide them with quality services that allow them to live independently. Key to making this happen is the Wardwell's ability to maintain rents at affordable rates and to provide a homelike atmosphere that includes outstanding service to the residents.
